

Impulsive systems

PETER R. WOLENSKI

Louisiana State University

Abstract

This talk surveys recent results in impulsive systems. In particular, we introduce a sampling technique that combines fast and slow time contributions but is nonetheless analogous to the classical Euler one-step method. We will show how this can be used to derive invariance results and develop a Hamilton-Jacobi theory.